About Wild Ones

Wild Ones informs and teaches people how to use native plants in their landscapes. A national organization, it is made up of local area chapters as well as a large number of partners-at-large from throughout the United States and Canada.

Wild Ones distinguishes itself from other garden and landscape organizations by encouraging the use of native plants, and moving away from the use of chemicals, watering, excessive mowing, and other practices commonly used by traditional gardeners. People come to Wild Ones to learn about environmentally friendly gardening and landscaping – about plants native to their area that have evolved to survive our climate without help from artificial means – and to share what they've learned with others.

Chapters hold regular meetings of which most are free and open to the public. Programs focus on prairie, woodland, and wetland native plants and related subjects.

Seeds for Education

Wild Ones provides a grant program to fund the purchase of native plants and seeds for outdoor classrooms and learning centers being developed at schools and various other places of learning. Our SFE Nursery Partners provide a variety of support to the grant recipients, and our SFE committee develops curriculums for use with these programs.

Wild Ones Native Plants, Natural Landscapes promotes environmentally sound landscaping practices to preserve biodiversity through the preservation, restoration and establishment of native plant communities. Wild Ones is a not-for-profit environmental education and advocacy organization.

We Invite You to Join Us

How you present and care for your grounds provides a visual public image of you as an entity. The use of native landscaping on your grounds demonstrates a commitment to the environment and a sustainable future! A Wild Ones business membership underscores your commitment by helping to underwrite Wild Ones educational and advocacy programs to expand the use of native landscaping in our business communities.
